About Us

We were established in 1984 to serve the needs of engineering companies in Greater London.

Over time we have built up a wide product range of metals and plastics and a reputation for excellent service and next-day delivery.

Our product range extends over all non-ferrous metals and alloys and now engineering plastics. We aim to give our customers as wide a choice as possible regarding alloys, shapes and sizes but not at the expense of speed of response. All of the products in our ex-stock product range are usually available on a next day service.

Contact us today, and you can have your alloys or plastic tomorrow!

Stockholding

Our stockholding facility in Enfield houses large stock quantities. Our stock includes many hard-to-find alloys and sizes of metal and plastic in both metric and imperial dimensions. We aim to have the following customer request in store no matter how unusual, so we invest heavily in our range. We also provide various cutting and processing services to provide the most efficient raw materials supply for manufacturing operations.

Further investment in modern processing equipment means we consistently cut to close tolerances and can handle bespoke customer requests.

Customer Care

Today, Thames has access to one of Europe's broadest ranges of non-ferrous metals, alloys and engineering plastics. We continually analyse and refine our stock materials range to improve engineering raw material availability. We offer our customers unrivalled levels of material and customer support, to ensure our customers are supplied, even under the most challenging market conditions caused by the recent pandemic, Brexit and the cost of living crisis.

However, we remain focused on what has made us successful since we began – a dedicated local service, fast response and genuine care for every enquiry we receive.
