Service Overview

We add considerable value to our supply proposition with dedicated in-house processing services.

Our services make Thames a single supply source for all your alloy and plastic requirements in the Greater London area. We undertake all these services under one roof and supply our customers with engineering raw materials to their specific size requirements.

We also improve your supply chain by combining our stock range and processing services with the power of our unique bespoke IT platform to provide a service offering which is unrivalled in the South East of England.

Our in-house services are performed to extremely close tolerances, which will get you one step ahead in the engineering and fabrication process. We provide all these services competitively and cost-effectively.
